

Marketing Performance Report

Jun 1 – 30, 2025 compared to May 2 – 31, 2025

norton odonnell

This "Marketing Performance Report" breaks down the KPI's and metrics achieved in the month of June. The focus is both on paid ads as well as organic social media performance.

Table Of Content

- Google Ads Performance
- Instagram Performance
- LinkedIn Performance
- Meta Ads Performance

Google Ads Performance

Google Ads Performance

Key Insight: The increase in Google Ads budget sometimes does more damage than good, but optimisations will be made to try lower the cost/conv. If conversion metrics continue to decline, then I will reallocate some of the extra budget to Meta for boosting.

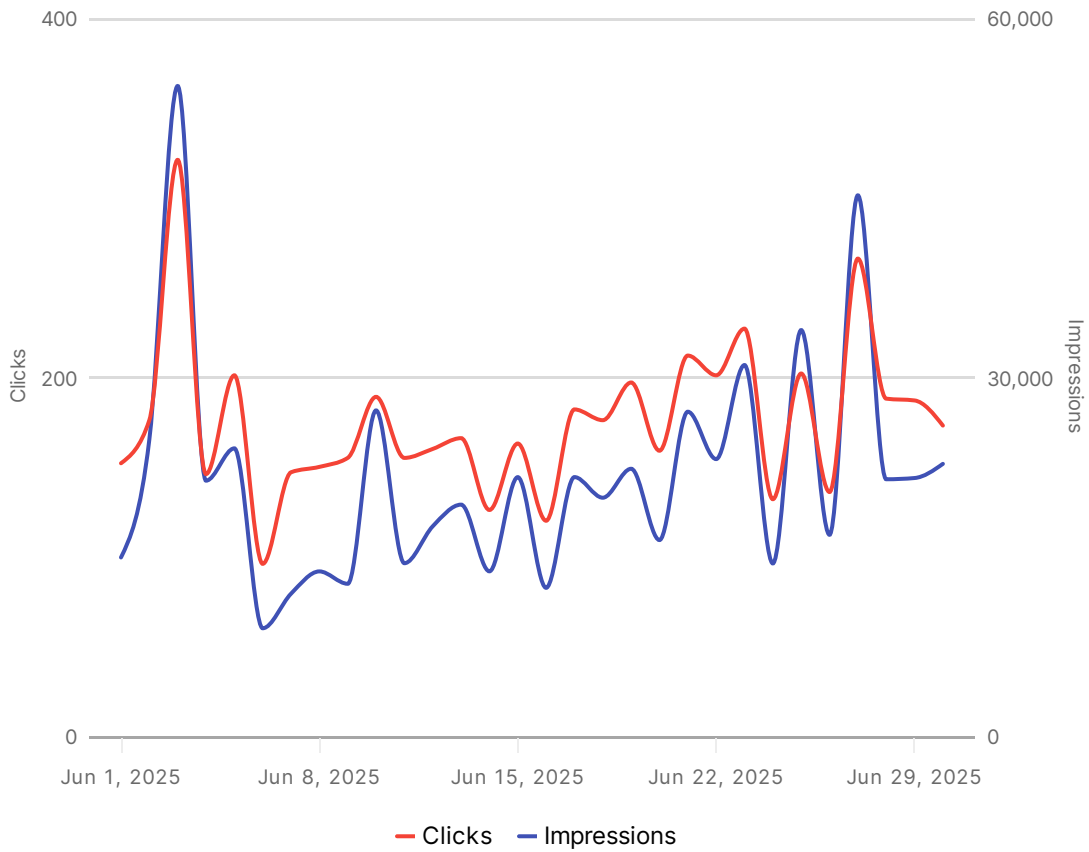

Glossary

- Cost: The total amount spent on Google Ads over the reporting period.
- Clicks: The total number of times users clicked on your ad.
- Impressions: The number of times our ad was seen.
- Conversions: The number of actions completed by users after clicking our ad, such as Phone calls, Direction requests or Lead form submissions. This reflects campaign success.
- Average CPC (Cost Per Click): The average amount paid for each click on our ad. It helps us understand the cost-efficiency of our traffic.
- Cost per Conversion: The average cost to acquire one conversion. A lower value indicates a better return on our advertising investment.
- Conversion Rate: The percentage of clicks that result in a conversion. A higher conversion rate indicates better ad performance and landing page experience.
- CTR (Click-Through Rate): The percentage of people who saw our ad & clicked on it. Calculated as (Clicks ÷ Impressions) × 100. A key indicator of how relevant and compelling our ads are.

Gender and age performance

June 2025 Key Takeaways

- 1. Google Ads Performance:
 - Clicks are up by 32.8% and impressions doubled, signalling strong visibility.
 - Cost per Click dropped slightly to ZAR 2.96, improving traffic efficiency.
 - However, conversions dropped by 47.4%, and conversion rate declined to 0.76%, indicating a decrease in user behaviours such as phone calls, direction requests & form submits.
 - CTR also declined by 39.2%, suggesting ad creatives or headlines may need a refresh and optimisation.
 - The increase in Google Ads budget sometimes does more damage than good. — “if it ain't broke don't fix it.” — If conversion metrics continue to decline, then I will reallocate some of the extra budget to Meta for boosting.
- 2. Instagram Performance:
 - Video content dominated: Reels saw a 5,898% increase in total watch time, driving massive engagement through paid boosts. The increase in total watch time can also be attributed to us posting more long format Reels than previous months.
 - Post reactions and engagements up by 77%, indicating that boosted content worked, and our targeting is set to the right demographics.
 - Organic engagement fell by 53.3%, highlighting a need to re-engage our core following and/or re-balance organic vs. paid strategy. This can be done through a giveaway where our followers have to like, comment and share to be entered, creating a large influx of organic engagement.
 - Link clicks dropped by 35.4%, possibly due to story & CTA placements.
- 3. Meta Ads:
 - New ad account is running smoothly and hasn't received any warnings, even though the lead form campaign has been rejected, but this can be fixed by some updated graphics & ad copy.
 - Overall metrics saw a positive increase, with Impressions & Reach doubling in comparison to last month.
 - Link clicks did see a 33% decrease, but this is due to the campaign graphics being rejected midway through the month, rather than it being performance related.
 - The lead form campaign did manage to secure us 281 leads, this data can be used for our upcoming Newsletter campaign.
 - Cost per engagement had a 65% decrease to ZAR 0.17, indicating cost-efficient engagement.
 - Best performing ads were boosted posts such as the Happy Hour & the Night Owl — specials being a key format to double down on in July.
- 4. LinkedIn
 - Modest but steady: 95 views, 7.48% engagement rate.
 - Highest performing content in terms of engagement rate was our Rugby posts (e.g. live music, rugby watch parties).
